FCC - MAIL ROOM

May 30, 2007

The Honorable Kevin J. Martin
Chairman
The Federal Communications Commission
445 12th Street, S.W.
Washington, D. C. 20554

Dear Chairman Martin:

It is my understanding that the FCC will soon be making a decision regarding turning over a huge portion of the public airways to companies to AT&T, Verizon, and Comcast.

These newly available airwaves will make more affordable internet services to the American public. However, if the FCC elects to turn over these airwaves to the major communication companies, it will result in higher fees for consumers and a stifling of internet services.

I am urging you and your fellow FCC Commissioners to protect the public good by setting rules that favor the public interest over corporate interests. The FCC needs to prohibit anti-competitive behavior on the part of the major communications companies.

Sincerely yours,

Albert B. Sturges
